How Solor can help health care organizations become HROs

Did you know that more than 250,000 deaths in the US are attributed to medical errors every year? This is almost 7 times the number of annual automobile accident deaths. It should come as no surprise that in recent years, the US health care system has been transitioning out of a fee-for-service (FFS) model and into a value-based care (VBC) model measured by the quality and outcomes of patient care. As VBC incentives and penalties become integrated into the health care system, there exists an urgent need for a widespread standard and consistent quality of health care. With the advancement in financial, clinical, and technological cross sections of health care, health care organizations (HCOs) are experimenting with new approaches to make improvements upon their health care systems, with the safety of the patient as their top priority.

Improvement in SEO

- Currently, a Google search for solor.io will yield our website as the #1 result.
- Future goals will be to improve rankings with other search terms such as “solor”, “healthcare terminology solution”, and “semantic interoperability”

Challenge

- Improvement in rankings require time (several months for key words not directly linked to the website name) and based on volume of relevant content (i.e. blogs)

Integrating DocBook with Solor.io

Looking ahead at future updates to integrate DocBook with the website

GoDaddy Account

- Currently the GoDaddy hosting account is for WordPress only. This means there is no access to the cPanel (backend) to configure additional settings for subsites (i.e. docs.solor.io).
- Recommendation: Switch to a cPanel account

DocBook Integration

- Continue to work with Andrew / Benson's teams on configuring the DocBook export so that it can be viewed on the docs.solor.io website

Current Website Challenges

Major roadblocks to updating the website's features, layout, and UX

AppCase WordPress Theme (currently being used)

This is a restrictive and single-use WordPress theme with a low user base, with only 20 sales on ThemeForest. As such, there is no support in terms of how to change backend code / CSS, significantly increasing the effort and time it takes to make any minor changes to the website's layout, text, graphics, etc.

Recommendation: Overhaul to a new WordPress theme that has a wide user base with strong customization options and redo the website from ground up [upcoming Greenhouse]

SSL Certification using HTTPS (not currently active)

Current website is using <http://>, which is now considered unsecure by Chrome. A browser security warning banner with a grey background, containing an information icon, the text 'Not secure | solor.io', and a close button.

Recommendation: The website is hosted on GoDaddy, which offers to upgrade website to a secure <https://> designation for an annual fee (~$100). This will also require additional coding changes to implement.
